

Innovative Communicator Accelerator Programme (ICAP)

ICAP for NEXT-GENERATION LEADERS

You're ambitious, confident and keen to be in a position of leadership. You embrace technology but understand the need to balance this with genuine, human connection. While you respect those who've gone before you, you're hungry to create change in how business is run on a global scale.

The global Deloitte Millennial Survey 2018 confirmed that young people's biggest priority is securing the opportunity to develop their communication skills – something they say is vital to their future careers. This includes interpersonal skills, confidence and ethical behaviour.

Our ICAP for Next-Generation Leaders (NEGL) will help you develop the communication and leadership skills you need to realise your ambitions.

Programme outline

- To define what it means to be an Innovative Communicator
- To discuss the current global landscape and the impact it has on you as a next-generation leader
- To explore the importance of self-awareness and the impact of psychometrics
- To inspire others through authentic leadership in line with your cultural and social beliefs
- To measure and evaluate return on investment
- To participate in an interactive case study: The challenges of being a Millennial
- To reflect and build a personal ongoing action plan
